

XEWIN

SIMPLE MUSIC FOR COMPLICATED CATS

Biography

It's under the nickname of Xewin that Sylvain Ehinger reveals his personal view on electronic music. Music and sound synthesis freak for over 15 years, Xewin took part and started numerous projects.

From 1995 to 1999 Xewin produces techno for the band NSM. He then created the Ananké project, an electro-pop band with which he composed and arranged over 30 tracks between 1999 and 2003.

In 2004, he constituted with the singer Romaine Lovey the band Cobalt. Xewin's task in the band is to give a tone identity to the songs composed by Vincent. He also created instruments built with captors (lights, movements) used on stage for Cobalt's performances. Within 3 years, Cobalt released a 4-track cd (2005) and a fist album Domestic (2008).

After the release of Domestic in the beginning of 2008, Xewin dedicated himself to the execution of his solo project Simple Music for Complicated Cats (release: 2009). Inbetween two tracks of Simple Music for Complicated Cats the Swiss band Water Lily approached him to make some programmations on their album Turn on, Tune in, Drop out (2009).
